ONE WALES, TWO YEARS:
An Examination of the One Wales
Government from the centre

July 2007 made political history in Wales. The One Wales Agreement between Labour and Plaid Cymru is one of the boldest political initiatives ever undertaken in Wales. It has been an interesting arrangement between the two biggest parties in the Assembly and has come at a time of economic, financial, constitutional and legislative change. Two years into this government, and with two years to go before the next Assembly Election, it is timely to look at the way One Wales is working and delivering. Has it delivered, where will it go next, and what will it have achieved?

Why you should attend

The One Wales Agreement is the blueprint for what the Labour – Plaid Cymru coalition aims to deliver in a four year programme. Covering education, health, the economy, housing, the environment, culture and so much more, its implementation merits examination by anyone involved in making, influencing or examining policy and politics in Wales.

This Conference is the first time any independent organisations have tried to evaluate the progress and future of One Wales. As we mark two years since the historic agreements of July 2007, this event brings together leading politicians, key policy players and informed commentators for a dialogue on the current and future state of One Wales. It's a day you can't afford to miss.
